A Lexical Study of the Grammatical Features of אלוהים in the Jewish Hebrew Scholarship prior to David Kimhi

對於在 David Kimhi 之前的猶太希伯來學術研究 אלוהים 之語法特徵的一個詞匯考察

Matthew Oseka
岳誠軒

Professor
Concordia Theological Seminary
香港路德會協同神學院教授

E-Mail: matthew.oseka@yahoo.com

Abstract

The present paper analyses the explanation of the grammatical features of the generic name of God which was offered in the classic mediaeval Jewish lexica prior to David Kimhi. Those lexica were typified by the works of Menahem ben Saruq, Jonah ibn Janah, Nathan ben Jehiel of Rome and Solomon Parhon.

Keywords: Menahem ben Saruq, Jonah ibn Janah, Nathan ben Jehiel of Rome, Solomon Parhon, History of the Hebrew Grammar